

Loop Indigenous Fall Prevention Network

What is the Indigenous Fall Prevention Network (IFPN)?

Vision

Healthy and safe Indigenous adults and older adults.

Mission

To facilitate a collaborative process for fall prevention guidance, strategic directions and support to practitioners, community leaders and other key stakeholders working with Indigenous adults and older adults in communities across Canada.

The IFPN aims to:

Share existing fall prevention resources on an ongoing basis.

Expand the reach of existing key resources and initiatives by helping adapt them to be culturally relevant for use among Indigenous communities across Canada.

Help develop culturally relevant resources to address gaps in fall prevention among Indigenous adults and older adults in communities across Canada when a need is identified.

Work to influence/inform policy and address emerging fall prevention issues within Indigenous communities collectively and with a sustainability and long-term lens.

The IFPN meets on a quarterly basis for 1.5 hours and is open to anyone working with Indigenous communities to reduce the risk of falls and related injuries among older adults.
