

Impacts of the Fall Prevention Community of Practice

We need your stories! As a member of the Fall Prevention Community of Practice (CoP), you are invited to share how your involvement has contributed to a change of practice or policy in the area of fall prevention.

Since 2010, the CoP has been supporting and connecting practitioners, researchers and policy planners in the field of fall prevention. Today, the CoP connects over 1700 members from different areas of practice throughout Ontario and other parts of Canada.

In 2015, we surveyed members to learn more about their experiences with the CoP. They shared that the CoP brings value to their own work in fall prevention and to the work of their organizations. Now we would like to know more about what that value looks like in practice.

Why Participate as a Case Study?

- showcase your fall prevention work and your agency to a national audience
- add value to your own evaluation activities and capacity
- expand your fall prevention network
- support knowledge exchange in the area of fall prevention
- inform the continued development of free resources for the fall prevention community
- share evidence about the impact of the CoP
- highlight the great work you've been doing

How will case studies be selected?

To learn about the different impacts of the CoP, we would like submissions from a variety of:

- fields of practice
- geographic regions
- ways of engaging with the CoP
- specific practice or policy changes resulting from CoP engagement

How much time will this involve?

The approach to each case study will be different, based on the nature and scope of your work. We will work collaboratively with you to develop a plan, including, but not limited to:

- participation in a phone interview(s)
- sharing information, resources and results

How can I participate?

You can express your interest by using the link below to briefly describe your engagement with the CoP and the impact of this engagement on your fall prevention work.

The deadline for submission is June 30, 2017.
